

02 – Inpayments to your own account: providing for the exemption limit

Inpayments to your own account are also possible with the QR bill, but are subject to charge. Use your PostFinance Card or PostFinance Card Pay to continue making up to 20 free inpayments per month to your own account.

What is this about and what does it mean for you?

With the QR bill, it remains possible to pay cash into your own account at Swiss Post branches. However, these inpayments are subject to charge. In order to continue benefiting from the exemption limit of up to 20 free inpayments per month, there are various changes that need to be taken into account.

With the exception of the "Amount" and "Debtor" fields, handwritten entries on the QR payment part are not permitted. The handwritten comment "own account" is therefore also prohibited. This comment is currently used on the red inpayment slip (IS) to designate a payment to the payee's own account. Furthermore, there is no field in the QR code for the entry of slip codes (as there is for ISR).

Use your PostFinance Card or PostFinance Card Pay to make inpayments and continue benefiting from up to 20 free inpayments per month to your own account. Another advantage: the amount is credited to your account on the same day.

Without a card, you will be charged the regular fee for inpayments at the counter.

Changes to be checked in your systems and processes

Current status

Inpayments to your own account are possible with the IS and ISR inpayment slips and with your PostFinance Card or PostFinance Card Pay.

Up to 20 inpayments per month to your own account are free of charge. Costs are incurred from the 21st inpayment, as is the case for inpayments at a Swiss Post branch counter with an orange (ISR) or red inpayment slip (IS). This means that if you make 22 inpayments per month to your own account, you will be charged for two inpayments.

With conversion to QR bill

What is changing?

Inpayments to your own account are also possible with the QR payment part. These are subject to charge from the first inpayment and incur the regular fee for inpayments at the counter.

What needs to be done?

In order to benefit from the exemption limit of up to 20 inpayments per month to your own account, please use your PostFinance Card or PostFinance Card Pay.

What is the added value?

The amount is available quickly, as it is credited on the same day as the inpayment.
